Voluspa Jarpa "Syndemic Studies" at NOME, Berlin, 2021

Voluspa Jarpa's "Syndemic Studies" examines how states manage social unrest, aiming to make visible the relationship between protesters and police/military forces, as well as human rights violations committed by the State, which remain in evidence and impunity. Between October 2019 and June 2020, citizens of Jarpa's native Chile have witnessed one crisis after another, a triple social, health and economic crisis. These critical and simultaneous events are what is known as Syndemic, where the biological, the social and the political, generate a crisis of multiple, related and simultaneous factors.
